Abstract

This report focuses on the effective marketing strategies for the start-up and new brands by based on the real implementation of the 2 brands, HolikaHolika and Polla Cosmetics, both are the new cosmetic brands that just imported in Thailand. This research used mostly qualitative data in finding and also in analyzing the result. For the methodology, the researcher gather and finding the data by based on the experiment of the marketing project of each brand and on the result of each project. The marketing communication and the digital marketing play a big role for these 2 brands and others, we can't deny that these are very important in marketing in today's time. Besides, the result of the implementation showed that that the effective marketing strategies both marketing communication strategy and digital marketing strategies are really bring the positive result to the brands. This research aim to find which strategies of marketing through online are the effective strategies for the start-up brand and the new brand. However, the results are based on the marketing projects of 2 brands which means that it might not always fit for some other brands.

The internship report contains an overall five chapters, the purpose of this report is to explain my 2 months experience in my hosting company. The content of all chapters is mostly explained from the practical basis of all the projects I've done.

In the first chapter, I give the origin of this thesis including the backgrounds, objectives and the learning goals of this internship. It will also provide the information about the importance of the study and the methods used in this study. Besides, the basic details of the company including its background and profile, its mission, and the several projects that run through the company is in this chapter.

For the next chapter, chapter 2, it is the literature review part. This chapter will contain a review of research including the basic marketing strategy, also, a big part of this chapter is the review of the marketing communication and digital marketing for the aim to understand the decision concerning by the company. Also, the concept and theory of both traditional marketing and digital marketing will be included in this chapter.

The third chapter is the main chapter as it includes the overall internship that I had been worked and executed for 2 months. This is a case study chapter, it contains all the activities that the company had done for promoting its brands. This part contains the detail of activity and campaign of each brand which include the details of important strategies of marketing that the company had used for given projects are result in both effective and ineffective.

The next chapters which are fourth and the fifth chapter is the analysis of the strategies and tactics used for each project. This chapter links with the theories included in chapter 2 for analysis and summary the follow-up result including the positive and negative outcome that each strategy affected. Besides, this part will include the information of the outcome that the company had received in each project by using each strategy in order to summarize which strategies are effectively for the start-up brand. This part is partly answering the main objective of this research. In the last part, the development guideline will be contained for each brand by based on the site work I have done.

The final chapter is the conclusion of this research. It contains the suggestions and conclusion of the strategy and tactics for the brands in the company. The conclusion is made by what I have learned and observed from this research and internship.

Acknowledgement

This research cannot be achieved without the guidance and advice from my advisor, Associate Professor Pornthip Sampattavanija. She helps me a lot in doing this research including giving advices and suggestion. Professor Pornthip used to teach me when I was in junior year of University and I really enjoy her class. In her class, she gave many useful examples and provided a lot of knowledge that can be use in real life. I am thankful for having her as my teacher and as my research advisor as well.

Next, I would like to thanks to my family as they help me a lot in everything. They always support me and never left me behind no matter what which I really grateful for this. My dad and my mom always give me the best in all things including education, I can access to this faculty, BJM, at Thammasat University because of having their support. I feel really thankful for having them as my family as they are the best people in my life.

In addition, another important part that make my research accomplish is Peerakornsin Company, the company I was taking an internship for the specific intention in creating this research. According to my internship at this company, I received a plenty of knowledge from my real implementation, plus, I had learnt many new things and got more experience from real working field. Everyone in this company is really nice, they were giving me a warm welcome at my first day of internship program and had been taught me many things since then. Besides, although I had done with my internship program, they still help and support me including giving useful information for this research. I would like to thanks to everyone in the company and thanks to the company for giving me such a good opportunity as being a part of it.

Lastly, I would like to thanks to my all of my friend for being my supporter in everything. They always help me, they give me an advice when I needed and always stay beside me. If I need some helps including information in creating this research, they would help me as much as they could. I am really thankful for having them as my friends.

Chapter 1
Introduction

1.1 Background

Nowadays, our world has been thoroughly transformed by digital technology and has been moving into the fully-digital world. This phenomenon affects almost everything including the business. The digital transformation forces us to adapt and work with new technologies, mostly constantly emerging and evolving technologies.

For the business field, the digital transformation has a lot of impact on both existing business and the startup. The existing business needs to reform the old marketing strategies and moves to the effective strategies that appropriate with the behavior of the consumer in today's world, otherwise, they might can't be accessed to the consumer as they had done before. The digital transformation is not only affected the existing business in the way of adapting its marketing strategies but also lead to many new competitors which we called them as a startup company. There are a bunch of start-up companies establishing in the digital world which is the result of the digital technologies that provides more opportunity for everyone to start their business much easier than in the past.

To start the business is not tough in this era but it is tough to survive and succeed as there are lots of fierce competitors. The start-up companies will face numerous challenges at the first stage, they must develop their marketing strategies and using effective strategies at the very first stage so that they can start on a strong base. The Polla Cosmetics, Holika Holika by Polla, and the Petite Lael are all start-up company. They need to carefully plan ahead of its sales and marketing strategies to be able to succeed and achieve its goals and objectives.

As consumer behavior change, increasing of the online digital consumption, the way of marketing for business needs to transform into digital form as well.

1.2 Digital Marketing

The term of digital marketing was first used in the 1990s. Digital marketing is defined as the marketing implementation that makes use of electronic devices including smartphones, personal computer, laptop, and other devices which by having the internet as a medium, blending with the marketing strategy which appropriates for the brand's target group for the specific intention to reach the brand's objective goals (Kotler and Armstrong 2016, 49). The digital marketing is one of an effective way to create the relationship between the brand and the consumer.

Online it's about engaging with them, listening to them, and learning from them. (Bruner, 1998.) The great digital marketing brings opportunities for the company to go beyond other competitors. The best marketing is great customer service. (Sterne, 1999.) In addition, the company uses their social media as a monitoring tool to monitor the current movement and business situation, if there is any issue so they can quickly solve by showing response via their social media for informing with their stakeholders including consumer. Once the company is facing an issue, social media is an important tool and plays a big role in solving this issue and avoiding lead to a crisis.

1.3 Objectives and Learning Goals

This section includes explanations of the particular objectives and the methods for: (1) the study of digital marketing, (2) the study of concept and strategy for startup brands, and (3) the monitoring result.

There were primary objectives and learning goals of this study:

1. To understand the functioning and working condition of a digital marketing section in an organization;
2. To see the different techniques of digital marketing use for different projects in a professional environment;
3. To identify the several techniques both effective and ineffective for startup brands;
4. To identify the differences of techniques used for the different brands which access to the different target audiences;
5. To assess the effectiveness of concepts and strategies in use on the Brands; and

6. To conclude the result of digital marketing communication used for the acquired brands.

To accomplish the objectives of this study, the execution must be done for each brand by contributing all the activities and campaigns that the brand was created for marketing itself. this contributing and execution is done for achieving my objectives and learning goals which are to understand and identify the concept, strategy, and techniques for digital marketing. Including the explanation of the process of digital marketing and the differences in digital marketing used for the different brands and different projects.

To accomplish the assessment objectives of this study, the contributing must be done many times to specify the primary target audience which is one of the most important parts in digital marketing as it helps the company to develop effective marketing communication strategies. The social media tools including the analytics tool of Facebook and Instagram are behind the accomplish of this objective.

1.4 Scope of Study

This study focuses on marketing communication along with digital marketing on the startup brand. The research includes the technique and strategy of marketing communication which had contributed in the case studies of 2 different brands in the company, Polla Cosmetic and Holika Holika. Also, the 2-3 month activity and campaign of the brands will be analyzed and compared the marketing strategies that the company used for each brand.

The analysis data of the marketing result will be included in this study, all the information is based on the real analysis resulted in the period of time of the given activities. The result can be changed over time depends on many variables.

1.5 Research Methodology

There are divided mainly into 3 types of data collecting for this research; Documentary research, Observation, and Quantitative data gathering. The data used for this research are mostly collected from the secondary data from the existing literature about marketing communication and digital marketing. The information of the case studies part is collected from the author's implementation in the internship which gathered from the observation, implementation, and learning from the real working field.

1.5.1 Documentary Research

These data are gathered from the information given by the company. Most of the theoretical sources are gathered from the existing literature both in the online platform and offline. For the information of results of the implement are gathered mainly from the company's information.

1.5.2 Observation

Information gathered from the experiment of the internship by observing, working, and learning from the real project. These data will mostly include in the part of the case study which explains the step of implementation of the activity of each brand in the company. The information is based on the author's real experiment, all data contain no augment and no adding colors.

1.5.3 Quantitative Data gathering

Some data, especially the data for defining the brand's target audience, are in the form of quantitative data as it includes the information of demographic, psychographic, and insight. These data are gathered by using the analytic and advertising tools of social media.

1.5.4 Data Analysis

The technical tools used to analyze the data for this research is Facebook marketing tool. Most of the data analyzed by the Facebook tools are in the form of quantitative data. The information in the form of analyzing the demographic and psychographic to define the target audiences will be the quantitative data analyzed and summarized by Facebook tools.

1.6 Limitation of Study

Some information of this research are gathered by the media tools which the result is not completely accurate as the tools can measure approximately result, plus, the data can be changed every day. The summary result is evaluated and concluded within the period of time of each project, some of the projects need to continually evaluate, however, the summary results of this research is evaluated by based on the 2 to 3 months activity and project of each brand that the author had experienced.

THAMMASAT UNIVERSITY

Chapter 2
Literature Review

This section includes the details and review of basic theories of both traditional marketing, digital marketing, and marketing communication in order to understand the decision and action concerning by the Company which had done the marketing for its brand.

Particularly, when it is a startup brand that has recently entered the market like the Brand in the Company, Polla Cosmetic, or the existing brand but has a different way of sale as it has in the market like Holika Holika, it is important to identify different marketing tools and find the most appropriate marketing strategy to be able to create a comprehensive marketing plan to reach its target market.

First of all before moving to explain and review marketing theory, it is important to understand what the start-up is. It is highlighted by Steve Blank's (Forbes 2012) that "A start-up is essentially an organization built to search for a repeatable and scalable business model", or as suggested by the American Heritage Dictionary, "It is a business or undertaking that has recently begun operation".

2.1 Concept of Marketing

2.1.1 Definition of Marketing

There are many definitions of marketing. According to American Marketing Association (AMA 2013), it had defined Marketing as "the activity, set of institutions, and processes for creating, communicating, delivering, and exchanging offerings that have value for customers, clients, partners, and society at large." The twofold goal of marketing is to attract new customers and keep and grow current customers by delivering satisfaction, according to 'Introduction to Marketing Management' by Osman Safdar Sarwani. It is a process by which companies create value for their customers and build long-lasting and strong customer relationships in order to gain value from customers in return. (Kotler and Armstrong 2013)

It would be easy to assume the definition of marketing if it is just "telling and selling" like in the past, unfortunately, that term of marketing can't be used in today's world. The marketing is more than just making a sale but it is to create value for the customer and satisfying the consumer need to build the long-term strong customer loyalty and to minimize customer turnover.

All in all, presently, the importance of marketing firstly is to understand the consumer need and make them satisfied. If the marketer understands consumer needs; develops products that provide superior customer value; and prices, distributes, and promotes them effectively, these products will sell easily and the company can create the consumer loyalty easily if the company could satisfy them.

The Figure 1 presents a simple five-step model of the marketing process. In the first step, companies work to understand consumers including understand the customer needs and wants and also the marketplace they are operating. Next is to find the best plan and design the marketing strategy that would make the companies create value among their customers. Then, the marketers have to develop an integrated program and take action that will deliver a strong value to target customers for the intention to build strong customer relationships in the next step. In the final step. In this step often include the marketing mix tools called 4Ps of Marketing: Products, Prices, Places, and Promotion. These are the main factors that the marketers and the company need to concern for creating customer satisfying and value, for getting an effective marketing result. By creating value for consumers, they in turn capture value from consumers in the form of sales, profits, and long-lasting customer equity and loyalty.

2.1.2 Definition of Defining Market

Defining a target market specifically allows a company to focus on specific market factors and access to the right group. Once the company defined its target market, the company would reach its objectives goal easier as using the right marketing strategy to the right target market would enhance the marketing result positively. It is hard for the company to do the marketing without defining the specific target market as there is a vast number of the customer, a different group has different kinds, segments, and way to approach, that need a different marketing strategy to reach. The company can define one or more than one segmentation depends on the types and functions of its product to serve the best-fit marketing strategy for those target market for getting the most profitable.

Figure 2.2 The STP (Segmentation, Targeting, Positioning) process & types of market segmentation. From the MBA Skool Website (Accessed in 2011)

Presently, Segmentation, Targeting, and Positioning (STP) is a familiar and popular strategic approach to Modern Marketing. It is an important part of creating a productive marketing communication plan since it helps marketers to prioritize propositions and develop the marketing strategies including the messages, contents, and communication channels which best-fit to each target market they had defined.

According to Figure 2.2, there are 3 steps as follows:

Market segmentation minifies the vast number of the customer into the specific target market group. Operating a marketing strategy to the specific target market gives a much more addressable audience rather than giving random groups of people. Having similar groups would make the company works easier in making a decision on its marketing plan and strategy, also, it enables companies to be more focused in terms of their product positioning, product differentiation strategies, marketing strategies and techniques, pricing strategies, and etc.

The market segmentation can be done in many ways but the most common way is to segment by the segment variables. The most regularly used variables in the consumer market are: demographic, psychographic, geographic, and behavioral. (Armstrong 2012; Kotler 2013)

1. The Demographic Segmentation slices the population in the market on criteria based on demographics like age, gender, salary, nationality, ethnicity, generation, family members, education, and socioeconomic status. Almost or can be said to be all companies need to do this type of market segmentation as it is the main basic information of their target group's profile which can be formed as a homogeneous group.
2. The Psychographic Segmentation done based on the personality of people, their characteristics, their lifestyle, social status, and their background and experience. This part also needs to be done because although customers who defined in the same demographic segmentation might not have the same psychographic factor.
3. Geographic Segmentation is when the market is divided by geographical factors including country, region, town, state, and etc. Geographic segmentation is acquired depends on the idea that groups of consumers in a particular geographic area may have a specific product or service needs.
4. Behavioral Segmentation is when companies divide the market based on customer behavior including the customer's knowledge, attitudes, uses, and responses to a product.

2.1.2.1 Targeting the Market

Targeting in marketing is a strategy that breaks a large market into smaller segments to focus on operating the company's marketing with a specific group of customers within that audience. To target the market, the marketers and the companies need to evaluate carefully for the best profitable and most effective result. Many factors need to be concerned such as similar market segmentation with its competitors would affect the company negatively if the company can't offer superior value and gain an advantage over its competitors. The company should choose the target marketing strategy based on its objectives and resources, they should consider whether they can succeed in an attractive market, the market they had chosen or not. (Armstrong 2012; Kotler 2013)

2.1.2.2 Positioning

Positioning the brand is a marketing strategy that intends to make a brand occupy a different position with the competing brands, in the mind of the customer. This step came after the company has done with market segmentation and target the market, it is to define the brand's products or services in the customer's mind through the brand's attributes including outstanding core value and brand's characteristics. According to Armstrong (2012), he had said, "Products are created in the factory, but brands are created in the mind". To Positioning the brand, the company need to differentiate its brand's products or services to make it stands out from its competitors.

2.2 Marketing Mix

Marketing Mix or also called as 4Ps of Marketing, according to Kotler (2013), the marketing mix is the set of tactical marketing tools that the firm combines to produce the response it wants in the target market. The intention of the marketing mix is to find a combination of marketing tools that will reach the customers at best profitable with minimum cost to the company. The marketers have to concern these 4Ps of marketing mix of the brands they are operating and work along with the brand's target market. The marketing mix be composed by 4Ps which stands for Product, Price, Place, and Promotion. The overview explanation of what every 'P' is in the Figure 4.

1. Product or Service

A product can be in the form of a good, service, or idea that satisfies consumers want or need and is received in exchange for money or some other unit of value. The idea of product includes more than just a bundle of tangible attributes, it can be intangible attributes as well, such as the services.

2. Price

Price is one of the most important factors and plays a major role as it affects the customer's choice and decision. Price refers to the value that is put for a product, or in other words, it is the value, such as money, that the consumer needs to pay to have the products or services. The price depends on many factors both direct and indirect including costs of production, the target segment of the company, the ability of the market to pay, and supply-demand factor.

For this part of Marketing Mix, the company commonly work with the pricing strategies, each tied in with an overall company marketing plan. Pricing can also be used as a demarcation, to differentiate and enhance the image of a product and brand.

3. Place

Place in this term refers to the point of sale which includes all channels that can be distributed the products and services to the customer. Nowadays, there are more channels for distributing goods and services for the marketers to concern including through social media channels, unlike the past that mostly focus on the location. The reason of placing is to make the product or service available for the customer.

4. Promotion

The last element of the Marketing mix, promotion, refers to all the activities and campaign undertaken for the specific intention of making the products or services known to the customer, trade, and market. It consists of the following five promotion tools: advertising, sales promotion, public relations, personal selling, and direct marketing.

There are several marketing strategies and tactics on the promotion sector including advertising, word of mouth, press, incentives, commissions and awards to the trade. It can also include consumer schemes, direct marketing, contests and prizes.

All in all, marketing mix is like the basic step of marketing that the company must make a decision and concern on each element (4Ps) on its brand. However, in the digital era, defining the 4Ps of the marketing mix is not enough to make the brand is known in the market, the promotion of the brand need to work along with the marketing communication strategy offers to the target market by conveying an effective message and access to them through the medium.

2.3 Marketing Communication

It is impossible for the companies to get success and achieve their goal without using the marketing communication strategy as the product wouldn't be sold until people come to know the product, the companies need to communicate with the market. The companies need to use effective communication strategies to communicate their customer value and create a value proposition to their customers. They must offer the high-product quality or services, to establish attractive prices to the customer. This part is important as well as create good branding, build a strong relationship with the customer, and enhance brand recognition. The marketing communication (MarCom) is like the voice of the company, it can be described as the messages that the company uses in order to communicate with the market to achieve its objective goals such as to reach and access to its target market.

The goals and objectives of MarCom are to create a message for promoting the company's brand including the company's value proposition to its target market in clear, effective, and continually through both traditional and digital media as possible.

The communication process should be a reflection of how the companies use the way of communication to communicate with their customers. In order to do effective communication, the companies should deploy and utilize various marketing tools from the marketing communication mix by the decision making works along with the company brand's personalities and objectives. These process covered in the integrated marketing communication and associated to the marketing communication mix.

2.3.1 Integrated Marketing Communication

According to Kitchen and Del Barrio Garcia (2012), the integrated marketing communication (IMC) can be defined as an interactive and systemic planning process and cross-functional optimization of messages, in order to communicate with coherence and transparency to achieve synergies and encourage profitable relationships on the short, medium and long term. IMC is any communicational action that aims to analyze, plan, integrate, coordinate, optimize the messages and communication channels by the company to send a clear, consistent, and compelling message about products and/or services, to influence on the consumers and build the most profitable benefit to the company.

The process of IMC is important as it makes the company has better managing the communication mix that brings the company to achieve the objective of its marketing goals. Also, it strengthens brand positioning by differentiating the brand. The IMC planning helps the company get in the right direction for creating effective communication which includes both in creating and delivering. According to Belch G. & M. Belch 2004, it had suggested that the IMC process consists of six steps in the following: 1) Contextual or situational analysis, 2) target markets, 3) communication objectives, 4) budget, 5) marketing mix strategy, and 6) evaluation.

2.3.2 Marketing Communication Mix

The idea of communication mix is a subdivision of the "promotion" in the Marketing Mix (Blythe, 2009.), in which covered the communication tools and the communication channels to communicate with the company's target market.

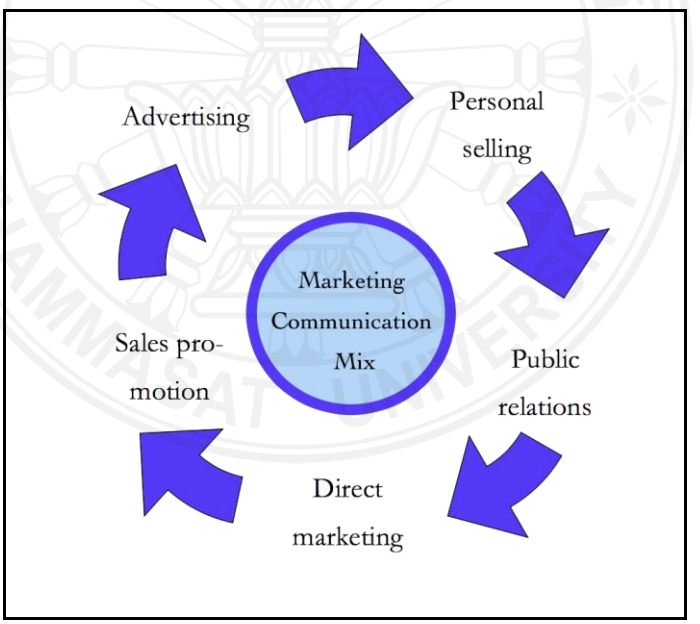

Figure 2.4 The five variables in the Marketing Communication Mix. Adapted from Kotler & Armstrong 2012

The marketing communications mix consists of five promotional tools that the company should have; advertising, sales promotion, personal selling, public relations and direct marketing. (Kotler & Armstrong, 2012.)

Technology keeps changing the face of marketing communications over time. (Smith & Taylor, 2004.) For example, in the past, the tool for delivering the message is mainly by the newspaper, posters, and other traditional media. Nowadays, the establishing of new technologies creates many new media platforms while the customer's behavior changes as well. People now access to more channels, especially on the digital media, this phenomena lead to the changing of the communication channel of the company.

Figure 2.5 The 6 common variables in the marketing communication mix. Adapted by Hitesh Bhasin in 2017.

As the technology changed, the more of marketing tools and strategies. In the first started, the marketing mainly focus on the production concept, but now the world has moved on and many businesses turning to focus on the consumer concept instead which is to add value into the product or brand in order to build the customer value and long-term customer. According to Figure 6, there are some changes of the variables in marketing communication mix which are the Internet marketing added in the sector of Direct marketing and the another main variable or tool added is the Packaging. “Many times, the decision is made by looking at the overall of the packaging of the product as well as the information written on the product," said Hitesh Bhasin on his article (2017).

2.4 Digital Marketing

Every company from all over the world runs the part of its business through digital technology, mostly on the World Wide Web, since it has appeared at the end of the 1990s. (Sheehan, 2010.) First of all, the digital marketing is the marketing of product and service through the digital technologies including digital channel and digital device. Digital marketing could be defined as a sub-branch of traditional marketing that uses digital technologies, by having the internet as a medium, to achieve the same goal as traditional marketing.

Nowadays, almost everyone accessed to the internet, as the high evolution of technology, people can access the internet through their digital devices including mobile phone, tablet, laptop, and other portable devices. Therefore, the internet is now a necessity, it is not only an entertaining channel, but it is also an important marketing tool in each business field, which manages wants and needs of the customers, improves the brand image, find new customer, increasing sales and reduces costs.

2.4.1 E-Commerce

E-commerce is a fast-growing business and booming industry in this era, it is the activities of buying and selling products or services through an online platform or over the internet. E-commerce is a fast-growing business and booming industry in this era, it is the activities of buying and selling products or services through an online platform or over the internet.

According to the research of the Thai E-Commerce conducted ETDC (Electronic Transaction Development Agency 2019), there was only 9.3 millions of Thai population use on the internet in the past 10 years (2009) but the survey in 2019 came out that more than 45 million of the population use the internet. This result reflects the change of human behavior over time on the digital transformation. The evolution of technology led to the lower cost and price of digital products, more people can access these technologies including the internet. It’s not surprising why the E-Commerce industry has been fast-growing since technology has developed rapidly in the past 10 years.

2.4.2 Social Media

Social media is one of innovative technologies facilitates the sharing of ideas, information, and thoughts through the building of virtual networks and communities. It allows people to share things including content, photo, and story, etc. with efficient quality and in real-time.

According to Nielsen, a leading global information & measurement company had conducted the research study in 2013 about time consumer spend on social media, consumers spend more time on social networks than on any other category of the website. Approximately 20 percent of their total time online was used on a personal computer (PC) and 30 percent of total time online on a mobile device.

Besides, Nielsen's survey (2012) found that social media has a strong impact on the customer decision on purchasing all over the world, but it is the strongest in the Asian Pacific, Latin America, Middle East, and Africa regions. The customer used social media on a daily basis to learn more about brands, products, and services. Social media has a strong potential to influence consumers across all regions. These following are the example of the most popular and well-known social media that most companies use for their starting their digital marketing : Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter.

a. Facebook

Founded in 2004 by Mark Zuckerberg, Facebook is an online social network service where users can create their own profiles, upload photos, post video, make a live video, share contents, send messages and keep in touch with family, friends, and colleagues. (Sponder, 2018.) It is the most popular social networking site worldwide as of April 2018 (Statista 2018), ranked by the highest number of active users. Also, it is one of the most effective platforms to interact with people, it became of the strongest tools of digital marketing to almost all business field since Facebook has created a business manager function in 2014 for the companies.

It is one of a marketing tool by Facebook in 2014 that helps organize and manage the business. Facebook (2019) defines its business manager function that "it allows advertisers to manage their marketing efforts in one place and share access to assets across their team, partner agencies and vendors." Besides, It allows people, don't need to be in the form of the company but can be anyone, to “manage ad accounts, Pages, and manage the team to stay organized and focused, all in one place.” Facebook Business Account provides analysis information of people who reach the pages and the posts which include genders, ages, location of the audience and how often it interacts with certain posts, which is a useful data for the companies to develop their marketing strategy. A company can better understand its target market, its preferences and find out which content better suits the customers for free. There are many abilities and tools apart from these abilities mentioned above that would increase the efficiency of the business's pages.

The ads manager is one of the marketing tools from the Facebook Business Manager that allows companies to simply advertise their Facebook Page for promoting and to increase awareness. It also provides an opportunity to optionally choose the company’s target audience, highlight specific interests, location, and gender, in order to promote a post with the company’s desired preferences of the reached audience. This tool is one of an effective tool as it makes the companies penetrate to the customer they are targeted.

After the advertising has ended, Facebook Tools allow the page to see how often their interactions with the post, the basic information of those who had engaged, and track page’s performance have been for adapting and applying on developing the company's marketing afterward.

b. Twitter

A real-time information network that connects users to the latest news, stories, ideas, opinions, and interests. There are 65% of marketers use Twitter for B2C (Business-to-Consumers) social media marketing. Twitter known for tweeting short messages, messages called Tweets are 140 characters long, it is an ideal platform for engaging consumers with a series of tweets, retweets, and hashtags. In 2019, the social network audience size is projected to reach 275 million monthly active users worldwide (Statista 2019). Twitter is still one of the leading social networks worldwide and a popular marketing channel. According to the rank of marketing through Twitter in the United States in August 2016, Twitter ranked second only behind Facebook in terms of the adoption rate of B2C(business-to-consumer) marketers.

c. Instagram

A social network where people share photos and videos owned by Facebook. It was created by Kevin Systrom and Mike Krieger, and launched in October 2010. The new function 'story' was released later in 2014, it allows the user can share their real-time story both in the form of photos or videos that vanish after 24 hours.

Nowadays, the Instagram is one of the most popular social networks worldwide, it has reached more than 1 billion monthly active users(TechCrunch, 2018). If compared to the statistic in 2013, the rates of the Instagram user has been grown up 10 times. Instagram is the second most engaged social network after Facebook (Emarketer, 2018).

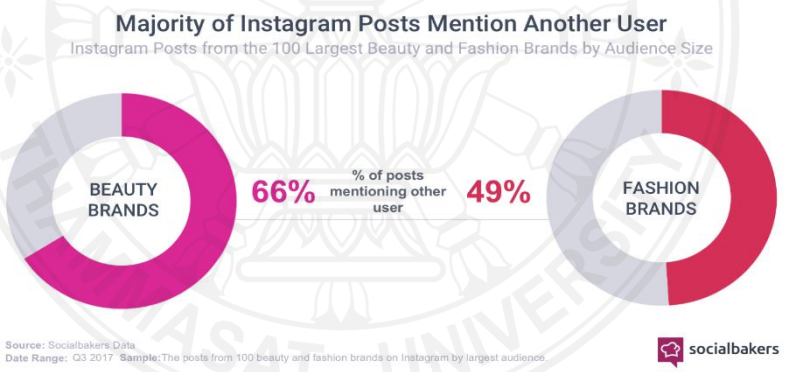

Figure 2.6 The statistic of the posts from 100 beauty and fashion brands on Instagram by target audience by Socialbakers Data 2017.

With over 800 million active users worldwide, Instagram is most popular with teenagers and young millennials. According to the Statista survey in 2018, 41% of Instagram users are 24 years of age or younger and most of those are women. Perhaps that's why many brands in the category of fashion and beauty execute B2C social media marketing via Instagram. From Figure 2.5, it shows that the fashion and beauty industries are the two most-engaging on Instagram.

The user can create the Instagram Business account by converting the normal profile account into the business account mode. This Instagram feature was created specifically for the business which contains the tools and features that help create a business presence. Once the user turns to the business account, the user can do the Instagram ads for promoting its business to raise more awareness and increase sales. This Instagram feature also provides the marketing tools that quite similar to the Facebook Business Manager including optionally choose the target audience by own and provide the information of analytic. It allows the information of those people who had interacted with the account's profile or post which is useful for defining the target audience easier.

2.4.3 Influencer Marketing

Influencer marketing is currently the most important new perspective in the marketing field as it plays a big role in leading on decision-making among people. Influencer Marketing is the use of an individual described as an influencer to persuade, influence, or impact on the customer's buying decision. According to Brown and Hayes, they defined Influencer as "A third party who significantly shapes the customer's purchasing decision, but may ever be accountable for it." (Brown & Hayes, 2008)

At this time, the influencer is booming via social media which people called them as a social influencer, anybody can be a social influencer if he or she becomes famous, get a lot of followers, and can affect other's decision. Mostly, the social influencer is an individual contain a high number of followers including film star, celebrity, experts, and net idol. However, influencer marketing doesn't need to be in the form of individual, it can be in the form of contents which created by content creators posting in social media such as in the blog post, page, website, or other social networks which are followed by many people and can impact on people's decision.

Singh et al defined the Social Influence Marketing is as "a technique that employs social media (content created by everyday people using highly accessible and scalable technologies such as blogs, message boards, podcasts, microblogs, bookmarks, social networks, communities, wikis, and vlogs) and social influencers (everyday people who have an outsized influence on their peers by virtue of how much content they share online) to achieve an organization's marketing and business needs."(Signh et al. 2012).

Chapter 3
Case Study: Marketing Communication of Polla Cosmetic and Holika Holika

3.1 Background of the Company

Peerakornsin Company Limited, founded at…, has been manufacturing cosmetic with quality standard. The Company's products are skin care and cosmetics such as body lotion, foundation, lipstick, and so on. The products that the company have are both produced by the company itself and some products are received from cooperating with other brands, mostly are startup brand, such as Holika Holika, the Korean Cosmetics Company. The production process is utilizing advanced production technologies running under GMP standard and concerned on the safety and efficiency of the products.

In the Company, there are many departments like general companies including accounting, marketing, and stocking department. For the marketing section, they divided into 2 sections which are offline marketing and online marketing. These 2 sections of marketing need to go along together for the effective result. The Marketing section is an important part of the company, it can be called as the core of the company in the way of selling.

3.1.1 Brands in the company

Polla Cosmetics is the skincare and cosmetics brands produced by Peerakornsin Company. The Polla Cosmetic has a different selling point from other cosmetic brands in the way of its packaging. Their products including soothing gel, BB cream, and CC cream are contained in the form of cream sachet packaging which is easy and comfortable to carry and use. There are overall 3 products of this brand which are soothing gel (aloe vera gel), BB cream, and CC cream. The products are made in Korea as it is ordered to produce by Korean cosmetic manufacture. The Polla Cosmetics is the startup brand, its product just released in 2019 at more than 60 stores of Seven Eleven in Thailand and several other cosmetic stores such as EveandBoy and Stardust.

Another brand that the company has been selling in 2019 is Holika Holika, the Korean Cosmetics Brand. This brand isn't owned by the Peeraornsin company, unlike Polla Cosmetic, they are cooperating with each other. Holika Holika is a Korean cosmetics retailer owned by ENPRANI Co. Ltd and created in Korea in 2010. Enprani is founded by Samsung & CJ Group. Holika Holika is expanding the market all over the world. The products of this brand are mostly cosmetics designed in the form of cute and eye-catching packaging to appeal to young, style-conscious consumers. The brand provides affordable prices on high-quality products made with the finest quality ingredients. Holika Holika has opened the first store in Thailand on October 2016, at Mega Bangna. The Holika Holika Thailand focuses on retail sales at its store and its official website, different from Peerakornsin Company that focus on the wholesales via online platforms for selling to the online trader and several cosmetic stores in the large amount.

3.2 Case Study

In this part, there are up to 2 brands, Polla Cosmetics and Holika Holika, for giving as the case study for this research. All the activities and campaigns are based on the real implementation of the company on its brands.

3.2.1 Polla Cosmetics

3.2.1.1 Marketing Mix (4Ps)

The company applies the concept of Marketing mix (4Ps) to the Polla Cosmetics brand which is in the following:

1. Product

Polla Cosmetics has overall 3 product types including CC cream, BB cream, and Soothing Gel. These kinds of products can be found in general, but the selling point of this brand which is the packaging makes the brand differentiate from other health and makeup industries. The products come in the form of little sachet packaging that is easy and comfortable to carry on. The brand positioning is the affordable brand and convenient packaging.

2. Price

The company set the affordable price that along to its target market that quite goes on the lower class market. All the products are all under 50 bath which everyone can buy.

3. Place

This Brand is available in many Thai departure stores and big multi-makeup store including Seven Eleven, EveandBoy, and some general makeup stores. The Company gives the convenience to the customer to buy this brand's product easily.

4. Promotion

The Company creates many activities and campaign for this brand as it is the new brand that just started in the market, it needs a lot of promotion for raising awareness to make people known of the brand. The activities from the Brand's campaign are mostly done by using the marketing communication strategy.

3.2.1.2 Marketing Communication Campaign

First Opening Campaign: Cream Sachet 'POLLA' - Lucky Draw

Campaign time period: January 2019 - March 2019

Total Budget: 2,391,000 Baht

The first activity that the brand launched is the 'Cream Sachet 'POLLA' - Lucky Draw Campaign', the lucky draw campaign is the activity that the brand created for grabbing people's attention of the brand as it is the startup brand which started from none known so it must launch the opening activity by the most interesting one.

As the Company sees that the lucky draw activity is not that effective way to grab people's attention to interest in its startup brand so they decided to create more activity in this campaign which is to give the short jeans for FREE for those who buy the Polla's products. This activity can influence people to buy the product as they don't have to root whether they will get the prize or not, as they will certainly get at least 1 short jeans for free and also have the right to get on the lucky draw for the big prize as well.

The rule and regulation of the activities in this campaign is just sending the sachet packaging of the brand to the Company's address, 1 name for 1 right, the sender will certainly get 1 Free short jeans and has the right to the Lucky draw game which contains the prize up to more than 1 million baht (The prizes include: 10 Motorcycles, 100 prizes of gold necklaces, and 100 scholarships).

3.2.1.3 Marketing Communication and Digital Marketing Strategies

Tools and strategies that the brand used in order to promote its campaign are from the marketing communication mix including advertising, Internet marketing, Public relations, sales promotion, and packaging. Besides, these tools and strategies were worked along with the digital marketing strategies, especially the social media tools, for the most effective outcome.

Objectives

1. To build awareness of the brand
2. To increase sales in 7-11 (department store)
3. To create the earned media
4. To create the trends in the market
5. To present the products in the way of high-quality low-price
6. To access to the clearer target audience for driving sales
7. To create the awareness of the brand's promotion and brand's activities

a. Define Target Audience

This is an important step as it makes the company communicate and promote to the right group. Although the company has an interesting way or great strategy to promote, but all of that would lead to ineffective result if they communicate or promote to the wrong target group. In order to find the target audience, the basic step is to observe the type of people who have engaged or interacted with the brand's channels. The target audience is mostly corresponding to the brand's target consumer.

The effective way that the company uses to define its target audience is Facebook Marketing Tool, or Facebook analytic tool. This Facebook's tool will compile the important information that is useful for the business including the average of likes and share of the pages, ages, and sex of people who have engaged and interacted with the pages, the most popular post, and so on.

Millennials, Generation Y, or those who were born after 1980 but not more than 2000 is defined to be the brand's target group. Apart from the age of the target audience, other things that Facebook Marketing Tool can process is that most of the brand target audience is female and most of them live in the northeast of Thailand, Bangkok, and the least are in other areas.

b. Advertisement

Budget Cost

- Main actress: 20,000 Baht
- live (Actress): 15,000 Baht
- Extra (7 people): 25,000 Baht
- Director + Cameraman + Recorder: 20,000 Baht

Total Cost

- 80,000 Baht

The advertising video is created which has the specific intent to promote the brand campaign to persuade and invite people to join the campaign activities. Also, the company wanted to convey the message about the brand to their customer clearly through this advertising video.

There are 4 elements of marketing tactic used in creating this advertising video for the effective result:

1. Content

The story content of this advertisement is in the form of short comedy advertising that focuses on promoting the brand activity's campaign rather than the product positioning but still telling some details about the product as well.

According to the journal of marketing study written in 1993 by Lou Dubois, the Director of Content, Global Brand Communications at Hilton, it stated that, “humor is more likely to enhance recall, evaluation, and purchase intention when the humorous message coincides with ad objectives, is well-integrated with those objectives and is viewed as appropriate for the product category. Under such circumstances, humorous advertising is more likely to secure audience attention, increase memorability, overcome sales resistance, and enhance message persuasiveness."

People will pay more attention to a humorous commercial than a factual or serious one so this advertising is in the form of comedy to entertain and grab their attention. The content is matched with the brand's target consumer, the story runs through 2 individuals who are both being a tiring factory worker(most of the brand's target consumers are factory worker). Overall, the content of this advertising is clear, short but comprehensive content.

2. Presentation technique

According to the Polla cosmetics advertising video, the form of language used in this video is humorous. The way the characters talk to each other are like friend-talk-to-friend, also, they used the words that are easy to understand. Besides, the way that the actors communicate for promoting the brand is intimacy, they used the informal language which like friend-talk-to-friend. This way can build the relationship between the brand and consumer as the consumer would feel like the brand is familiarity.

3. Messages

As we must do the short 1-2 minutes advertising video, all the messages that the company wants to send to the viewer need to be in short but completely clear messages. In this advertising, the main point is about promoting the campaign and activities rather than promoting the quality of the product, so the content of this ads is focusing about the explanation of the campaign and the rules and regulation of the activities. All of the explanation was shortened into the short message but clear and easy to understand. According to the advertising, there is a message 'beautifully, perfectly, could be done in just 1 Polla's sachet cream', this message used to describe the performance of the brand product. This message describes the pros of the product are providing beauty and convenient to carry and use. Although it is a brief message, the consumer can easily understand what the brand wants to convey.

As mentioned above that this advertising was not focusing a lot on promoting the quality of the product, however, it must provide some details to describe what is about this product to the viewer to understand anyway. So in this advertising, it used the short brief message but understandable to describe the product, the longer messages are for the detailed content including the rules and regulation of the campaign's activity.

c. Influencing marketing strategy

Budget Cost of Influencer

- 500 to 5000 Baht per person or page
- The cost depends on how they review and their number of likes and followers.

Total cost

- 230,000 Baht

The company finds the influencers both in the form of reviewing pages and individuals (beauty blogger and net idol) for reviewing and promoting the brand's product and inform the campaign's detail as well. The company set up the number of influencer they want to hire which up to 70 influencers.

First of all, we listed all the name of the influencers that have the followers whose correspond to the brand's target group and look possible to lead to the effective result of this reviewing. Then we started to make a contact and if their condition is acceptable and their performance fee is in the company's budget, then we send the product to them for promoting.

Influencing marketing is a popular marketing strategy in the digital world, it is the purchasing the reach of an existing influencer who has contained a large amount of following and strong brand reputation in a particular niche to support and promote your brand and product, with the intention of increasing the brand awareness and drive sales.

To create the most effective influencing marketing, the product must go along with the right influencer, otherwise, it would result less as the influencer couldn't access to the right target audience and the brand target consumer.

The Company planned to hire up to 70 influencers to let them promote the products and brand's campaign for the specific objectives of creating brand awareness (to let people know and join the campaign activities) for the aim to increase sales.

1. Influencer : Facebook Reviewing Page

This kind of review is in the form of reviewing by popular page on Facebook, not reviewing by the popular individual. Promoting by the influencer reviewing page has the advantages in the way that the review of this kind of pages can more access to the specific target group as the followers of each page are those people who have the interest of the type of what that page is reviewing.

For example, the company had hired one of the influencers reviewing pages which review everything about cosmetics and skincare, people whose follow this page must have an interest in cosmetic which directs to the type of the brand's products.

2. Influencer (Individuals)

The influencer is the popular tactics in digital marketing to create awareness and drives sales especially for the brand that has the millennials (People born between GenY and GenZ) being a target group. According to the millennials, they are likely to trust the review by the real user rather than the advertisement so the influencer is very important for promoting this campaign.

Most of the influencers that we had chosen are net idols and beauty bloggers. Although the net idols are not reviewing only one type of product and have followers with a wide length of the interest unlike the review page and beauty blogger that collecting the same-interest- followers, but they have the power to influence people quite a lot.

Some people buy the product because they believe in what the net idols review, they trust, love, and believe in that person which influence them to follow and do what that person does. Net idols we had chosen must have the lifestyle goes along to our brand's product, their followers are people who have demographics similar to the brand's target consumer for the most effective results.

The price of influencers depend on each person, larger follower comes with higher prices.

3. Page Review

There are many websites that are like the center for people to post and share whatever they want to. The company chose the websites that are in the category of beauty for the intention to post and share about its product, those websites are the center for people who are interested in makeup, cosmetics, and everything about beauty. There are overall 3 websites that the company chose for reviewing and promoting its products which are pantip.com, jeban.com, and sistacafe.com. Those 3 websites are very popular among teenagers and adults, people who are interested in beauty must know these websites.

Reviewing is one effective way to promote the product, most people believe in real user reviewing rather than the advertising from the brand. This way increase the credibility to the products and can persuade people to interest in the brand as well.

In addition, to post the review posted on many websites is like spreading the awareness of the brand as more people will see the post. In promoting, the company should promote more than one channel for an effective result.

d. Live Video

Budget Cost

- DJ: 27,000 Baht (3,000 baht per day
- Famous star(singer): 50,000 Baht per day
- Famous star(Actress): 20,000 Baht per day

Total cost

- 94,000 Baht

Live Video is another way to engage and connect with your followers and gain audiences. In today's time, many applications including the two most famous application, Instagram and Facebook, has been having this live video streaming function for a while. As live video shows the real-time live, the company used this function for live its campaign to show their transparency and increase credibility. According to the give-away-prizes activity of the company's campaign, the company chose to do the live while they draw lots to get the prize winners' name for their activity through facebook as most of their target audiences are in Facebook. The live video shows the company's transparency that they really give away the prize like what they had said.

d. Social Media: Facebook

The 'Cream Sachet 'POLLA' - Lucky Draw' Campaign was running through the brand's Facebook page 'The Polla Cosmetics' which is in the Facebook Business Manager, all campaign's activities were informed and broadcasted through this page as Facebook is the most effective media and the easiest way to access the target audience for this project.

The strategy used to promote this campaign activity is Facebook Tool to boost the engagement, likes, and shares, and to specify the primary target audience and target consumer for the effective development of marketing communication strategies for the next step process.

3.2.2 Holika Holika

For the second brand 'Holika Holika', it is not the brand new brand unlike the Polla Cosmetics brand that need to do a lot of marketing strategies and focus more on raise the brand awareness. As Holika Holika has been selling in Thai cosmetic market both in online and offline store for a while, some groups of people especially teenagers has known this brand. However, the company focuses on selling the products by 'wholesale' through the online channels, unlike with the Holika Holika Thailand company that does the retail selling through its offline store. Peerakornsin is the first company who sell this brand under this system, the difficult thing in doing the marketing for this brand is not to raise the brand awareness, but to create a clear understanding of the brand system and built credibility among the target group.

Objectives

1. To create an understanding of the brand selling system among the target group
2. To increase sales
3. To access to the clearer target audience for driving sales
4. To create the brand awareness of the brand's promotions and brand's activities.

3.2.2.1 Marketing Mix (4Ps)

4Ps or can be called as Marketing Mix is one of the marketing strategies that use for planning the marketing plan when the company has new good or product to the market. The 4Ps helps the company define the marketing options in term of Product, Price, Place, and Promotion so that the company can make its product meets to a specific target group and reach its marketing goal.

For the Holika Holika brand, the company also promoting this brand by based on the 4Ps (Product, Price, Place, Promotion) strategy for making the event successfully.

1. Product

The Holika Holika Nudrop Lipstick is the new collection of this brand and it is the main product that make this event happened. The product seems like normal lipstick but it has the different selling point from other brands. The Nudrop lipstick is lip tint in the form of lipstick, when putting it on the mouth it will give the texture of water like putting on lip tint. This ability is the prominent point of the brand and this product, it is the brand's selling point and makes the product different from the other brands.

2. Price

The Price of the products of this brand stays in the middle rate which is not too cheap like some drug store cosmetic brands and also not very high as the hi-end brand. Most people see this brand as the middle price rate brand that can affordable but get imported quality.

In the event, the company set the price of the Nudrop Lipstick at 360 baht from the normal price of 450 baht for those who buy only in the event. The normal price seems quite high if compared to the other brands for the lip tint product, however, the Nudrop lipstick is different from other lip tints and if compared the price with the brand position, this price is appropriate.

3. Place

The channel of distributing of the brand is mainly sell through online channel. The company use social media as the main place for selling and promoting. The main social media platform that the brand use is Facebook and followed by Instagram. Next, this part is going to be about the Place that the brand used for its offline activity.

The event is held at the Beautrium Store, the top popular multi-brand store in Thailand that contain both popular and unpopular cosmetic and makeup brand in a store. The store is located in the first floor of the Siam center, the mall that is located in the middle of Bangkok, which is like the city and shopping center for Thai people and foreigners.

The company chose this place for its event as they see that this is a popular beauty center, most people know this place. Also, it is the place where people use for passing to another building so we can grab their attention to interest on the event when they are passing by.

In addition, Siam Center is where most people ages around 17- 35 years old like to visit, these people are likely to be the brand target consumer and target group.

4. Promotion

The company creates many promotions in order to create the brand awareness and to grab people's attention. The company did the brand promotion by creating the advertising in many forms such as poster and advertising video. Besides, the company planned to promote its brand not just online but also offline by creating the event. They want to persuade people to come to the event as much as they can, so they created more than 1 promotion which each promotion is different from others.

3.2.2.2 Marketing Communication and Digital Marketing Strategy

a. Define Target Audience

First of all, the first thing that the company needs to do is to define its brand's target audience in order to promote to the right group for receiving the most effective outcome. To define the target audience, it is necessary to know the brand's target market and consumer to know which groups are most likely to become the brand's target and to use the right strategy to the right group.

b. Approach directly to target group

As the company is the first company that sells this brand by the wholesale system, it might be tough to have many customers approach the brand by itself. The company must do the promoting to both ways including doing general marketing to make the customer approach the brand and approach the customer directly by ourselves. The brand chose overall 4 channels to reach the target consumer which are Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, and Shopee.

How

1. Find the account that seems to be the brand's target consumer such as the Korean cosmetic online trader, Preorder Korean online Shop, and other online cosmetic shops.
2. Sending the information about the brand including the pros, the brand selling point, and the important detail through the direct message.
3. If anyone reply or has some interaction with the message, we will let them add our Line@ for more information.

3.2.2.3 Offline Activity - Event : Opening New Collection

Objectives

1. To raise awareness of the brand
2. To promote the brand new collection 'Nudrop Lipstick collection'

3. To increase sales both new collection product and the existing products.
4. To strengthen the relationship between the brand and the customer.

a. Public Relations (PR)

The brand informs the detail about the event in many channels to invite people to come and join the opening new collection event. The main channel that the brand uses to inform is Facebook as it is the platform which contains a huge amount of people in all types including those who are likely to be the brand's target consumer. Besides, it is better to post the detailed post that is quite long on Facebook rather than posting on other channels like Instagram and Twitter that are more go for the brief message post.

However, the brand still using other channels apart from Facebook to promote and inform as well, but use in a different way depending on the suitable of each channel.

b. Influencing marketing strategy

Presenter

Cost of Presenter

- 100,000 Baht /1 day + post promoting the brand in private account

The company chose Wiraporn Jiravechsoontornkul or people have known her as 'WjMild', to be the presenter of the event. Mild has a lively and innocent character, also, she has a Korean look and style which is fit to the brand character and brand product. Besides, she has a lot of followers up to 3 millions followers and has fan club in all types but the largest group is teenager, which conform to the brand target group.

In addition, the cost of hiring Mild is in the company's budget. Besides, her duty isn't only be the host and the presenter of the event but she also posted the invitation post to persuade and invite people to come and join the event. She helps to promote the brand's new collection product by posting the pictures on her social media and reviewing the product in her 'Makeup routine video' which has a lot of impact on increasing the sale of the new collection product.

Beauty blogger

The influencer in the type of page and blogger review and net idol also has a big impact in marketing and if we use them correctly along with other strategies, they can lead to an effective result and can influence people the same as the famous star and presenter.

The company hired up to 10 beauty bloggers from popular channels, most of them are from Twitter, to come to the event for helping to promote the product and event. These bloggers help to promote the product and event by writing a review of the product and inform their followers about the detail of the event. Things they wrote on their channel and the pictures of switching the products are their true feeling of the product and the pictures were taken from the real use, this creates the credibility of the brand and the product. This is one of the most effective strategies as people like to see the review from the real user instead of advertising

The company chose the bloggers mostly from Twitter because posting on Twitter can go viral quickly and easily to many eyes. Also, most of the people in Twitter are teenagers which quite correspond directly to our target group which easily to grab attention and persuade to interest in our brand campaign.

C. Sales Promotion

1. Price appeal

In the event, the company set the price of the new collection product and some of the popular products in the special price lower than the normal price for the specific intention to appeal and grab people's attention and interest.

The brand doesn't often have the promotion on the price so this event is very special. The company hopes that creating the price appeal promotion will grab people's attention more the less.

2. Buy 1 get 1 Free

The special price might not appeal attention enough, so the company plan to create the promotion of buy 1 lipstick get 1 more free. For this promotion, the buyer will get 1 lipstick free under the brand's conditions which is the buyer has to buy the product from the new collection to get the free lipstick. The free lipstick is not from the new collection but it will be the rare old collection 'Red lies lip tint'.

3. Lucky Draw

Besides the price appealing and give out promotion, there is also an activity of lucky draw for those who buy the new collection in the event day. The condition of this activity is only buy the new collection and bring the receipt into the lucky draw box, the presenter and the DJ will randomly draw to get the lucky winner up to 3 people for the big prize and another 10 people for the smaller prize.

3.2.2.4 Social Media

1. Facebook Page

The Facebook page is created for the specific intention which is to inform and update the information about the product and its promotion. The company uses the Facebook Business Manager tools to promote its brand page and post to raise more awareness of the Brand.

2. Instagram

Most of the Brand's target market is in the Instagram which mostly are women ages 18-24 (Statista 2018). The Brand's product is in the Beauty Category that is proven beneficial for the brand to promote via Instagram as well.

3. Line@ Broadcast

Another main way of informing and updating the products and promotion of the brand. As Line@ is where the brand's customer use to contact the brand for asking information and buying products, so broadcast through Line@ is the easiest way to use to inform and update to the customer directly.

Comparing Analysis the followers between February and March

The follower of the brand's page or we called them as our target group is mostly a female, ages around 25-34 years old. The summary evaluation of the two months, February and March, gives a quite similar result which is good for the company to define their target group. However, there are some changes in the information of the brand's target group from February to March, the summary evaluation of the target group's gender in March which increased 1 percent of male from none in February shows that the campaign can access to the group of male as well which is one of the brand's goal. Besides, the likes page of the target group is the same in both months, most of them interested in Health and Beauty pages which directly to the brand's product category. But there is some likes pages added in March, it is the page about collecting all the activities from everywhere for those who interest in winner prizes. This information shows that some followers who interest in the brand are interested in money and prize which why they interest in our campaign.

The main change of the brand's target group is the region and the city where the brand's target group live. In the beginning, most of the brand's target consumer is the city people or people living in Bangkok. Since the campaign launched, the city people, in the number of the brand's target, have been decreasing group but increasing in the number of country people especially in the northeastern.

c. Evaluation of the Brand's target audience for promoting campaign

The company divided the brand's target group into 2 types which are primary and secondary for the specific intention of using the most appropriate promotional strategy.

1. Primary target audience

   Gender: Female

   Age: 18-50 years old

   Interest: Health, Beauty, and Makeup Lover

   Region/City: Except Bangkok (the company aims to spread its sale in country areas as the result from the summary evaluation of its target group on Facebook which showed to the increase of interest in country areas)

2. Secondary target audience

   The company listed more than 1 group of secondary target audience by divided from the interest as they want to access many kinds of target audience for raising more awareness and increase sales in many areas.

3. Group of those who interest in lottery (and industrial women workers)

   Gender: Female

   Age: 18-35 years old

   Interest: Lottery and Industry work

   Region/City: Northeastern of Thailand

4. Group of those who interest in makeup (Northern + Western)

   Gender: Female

   Age: 18-35 years old

   Interest: Makeup

   Region/City: Northern and Western of Thailand

5. Group of men who interest in makeup

   Gender: Male

Age: 18-35 years old

Interest: Makeup

Region/City: Except Bangkok

6. Group of teenager

Gender: Female

Age: 14-17 years old

Interest: Smartphone

Region/City: Except Bangkok

Positive and Negative Feedback Post

Measured by: the number of views, likes, shares, and engagement.

Period of Time: About 1-2 months in evaluation

Positive Feedback Posts are as follows:

1. Polla Cosmetic main advertising campaign video

The Ads video goes quite well, it brings the positive result which achieved the brand's objectives including raising awareness, convey the proposition value to the customer, and send a velar and compelling message.

This is the result after 1 month after the video was launched, the feedback of this video is satisfied. It received up to more than 63,000 views, 24 sharing, 124,914 reach, and 11,295 of people engaging. The message that the company wants to send to its customer was sent through this advertising, this shows that the company get success on choosing the promotional tool (Marketing communication mix) which is using the advertising in promoting its customer value.

2. Real review post

This post used the technique of real using and give knowledge in the content, which is not hard selling. The pictures are of high quality which can grab people's attention to continue reading the post, besides, the content is in the form of giving technique and tricks, instead of selling product directly, makes this post get a positive feedback. It gets up to more than 30,000 views and 28 sharing in 1 month.

Negative Feedback Posts are as follows:

1. Graphic unrealistic post

This post is in the form of a graphic picture which gives the feeling of unrealistic and too direct sale which make this post gets feedback not as good as it should. The number of like and share is quite in the low rate which is only 1,000 likes and 8 sharing.

2. Interview video post

This video is the interview about the feeling of consumer to the brand's product. The feedback of this post is not good as the company had expected. The company had used the Facebook Advertising tool to make the post reach more people for raising awareness, however, it has got only 5 comments and 5 shares which are the low number of engagement if compared to the number of this post had reached up to 53,444 people.

Comparing Analysis the followers between February and March

The result of the analysis target audience between 2 months is quite similar, which changed a little on the percent of the target audiences' age. Most of the Brand's target audience is people aged between 18-34 followed by people aged 25-34 years old. The result showed the same in March but a decrease in 6% of those who 25-34 years old but the target audience aged 25-34 is 7% increasing. The result of the target audience is changing every month depends on the new followers added.

The region of the Brand’s Facebook followers is mostly a City people which live in Bangkok. This result is hard to change as the Brand’s target market is mostly in Bangkok. The Brand product is easier to access to the group of city people as most people who know this brand is a City people.

Chapter 5
Conclusion and Recommendations

The main purpose of this chapter is to provide implementation according to concepts and theories on chapter 2 and give the recommendation on how the brands in the company can improve its social media presence and attract more customers, consequently to increase sales and to achieve the company's objectives and goals.

5.1 Implementation

According to chapter 2, Literature Review, some strategies and concepts are work effectively, however, it depends on many factors that not all strategies can be used in all brands and projects. One concept that almost all brands need to rely on is the marketing mix, it is the important basic step for all brands as it makes the brand can position their product in the right place, at the right price, and at the right time. Those elements make the company know the aspect of its plan and can make its future plan easier. According to the research, the company had done this basic step, the marketing mix, with its brands and this led the company can easily keep going to the next marketing step. Next, the defining target market is another strategy that is important, not different from the marketing mix. This strategy will fit and works well with the product that can grab interest in only some groups of people. Defining the target market makes the company can specifically promote its product to a specific group which minimizes the waste of cost risk but maximize the awareness of brands. According to the Polla Cosmetics marketing, the company had defined the brand's target market and found out that the group that gives the most interested in the brand is not the same as what the company had assumed, so it changed its plan by turning to promote on these people and the result came out positively, more engagement and awareness of the brand.

Next, let’s move to the concept of marketing communication, integrated marketing communication is the basic step once the company plan on doing their marketing communication as it makes the company can see the overview picture of their plan, choose the right message, right strategy, and right channel to promote.

According to chapter 3, it includes the case study which includes the integrated marketing communication working along with the marketing communication mix and other strategies. The company planned its marketing for each brand by creating the short, clear, and memorable message that can best describe the brand's product, besides, it decided the way to promote including by advertising, Public Relations, and so on. The company had created the message for the Polla cosmetic brand which is easy to remember and the audience can understand immediately what is the brand about in this short message, moreover, this message was delivered by using advertising and had promoted to the target group which the company had defined. This project completely received success which can be shown by the engagement, interaction, and the increasing of awareness of the brand.

In my opinion, plus, my background experience, I agree with the new concept of marketing communication mix that is adapted by Hitesh Bhasin in 2017. As times have changed, the way of marketing change either, new elements are established all the time as well as the marketing communication mix concept. There are some new variables of MarCom established including the internet/digital marketing and packaging. If compared to all brands of the company, every brand had been done the marketing communication mix by based on the new concept which includes the internet marketing and packaging variable. The selling point of Polla Cosmetic is also the packaging so it must be focused on this selling point in promoting. Also, nowadays, more people are concerned about packaging than in the past, the packaging can effect on buyer decision a lot. In addition, all brands of the company focuses on marketing through the online platform, they are promoted in many online platforms such as Instagram, Facebook, and Twitter, these linked with the concept of digital marketing, especially on the social media sector.

5.2 Recommendation and Conclusion

Based on the result both qualitative and quantitative data obtained for this research, the following result has been gained: the overall performance of digital marketing activities and campaigns in each brand of the company is good with the startup brand or the new brand that just established in the modern era. Peerakornsin

Company as a wholesale business, all brands in the company are focused on B2B marketing, it uses digital marketing as one of its prior digital marketing activities. The following recommendations were made as high-quality performers in certain digital marketing activities:

5.2.1 Polla Cosmetics

Marketing Strategy	Suggestion
Marketing communication	Most of the content that the company had used for advertising and promoting the brand is focusing too much on promoting campaign which leads to the overlook of the quality and function of the products. This way may increase the sales at that time of activity but not in the long-term if the customer doesn't receive the customer value from the brand. The content story should partly include details describing the brand and products so that the customer knows of the brand and remember the brand's outstanding point.
Social Media	The promotion of the brand runs mainly through the Facebook page which gets high engagement according to the analytic information by the Facebook tool. As the brand's product category is in the Health and Beauty type, the company can expand its brand by focus promoting on other social media channels to increase the opportunity to get more people to see, especially on Instagram. Instagram is where the type of the brand's target market stay. It is an effective social network for promoting the business of fashion, beauty, and health as part of the Instagram users are women in the teenage.
Influencer Marketing	The bloggers and net idols that the company had chosen as an influencer for its brand are too many and many of them are indirect to the brand's character. The company should lessen the amount of influencer to decrease the budget, pick only those influencers who contain the followers similar to the brand's target market, which would lead to an effective result as possible. Although the company hires more influencers which might lead to more people to see the brand, it would affectless if those people are not the brand's target market.

5.2.2 Holika Holika

Marketing Strategy	Suggestion
Marketing Communication	The company should increase the way they promote its brand in the social media. Currently, the brand is mainly promoted in the brand's Facebook page by the general contents such as the updating of new product, the swatch of the product, and some other promoting contents. They should create the advertising video content to grab the audience's attention and use it as the brand's advertising video.
Digital media	More channel of promoting increase the opportunity to raise more awareness of the brand. The digital channel that the company mainly use to promote currently is Facebook. The company should create new development on expanding its market to raise awareness, in order to do this, they should focus marketing on another social network. The instagram and twitter is where the brand's target market stay, many traders of the Korean product use these 2 social networks for selling. The company should do its marketing on Instagram and Twitter as well.
Content	Most of the contents are about to inform and update general information about the brand and product. It has been lacking engagement from the customer in the digital media which is an important part of marketing to create the relationship between the brand and customer to build the long-lasting loyalty. Things that the company should do for creating the new development and improvement for its brand is developing its content strategy for increasing customer engagement. It can be in the form of small activity running in the brand's social media such as consistently creating the questionnaire to let the customer participate in sharing the ideas, suggestions, and engage with the brand. This way of activity makes the customers feel they are important to the brand as the brand gives importance to their opinion.

All in all, both 2 brands in the company should create new development by adding more channels including Instagram and Twitter, focus on marketing on other channels as same as on the Facebook page which is its main media. For Content marketing, the Polla Cosmetic, as the startup brand, it should focus more on promoting customer value and make the customer know the brand and its product to build the long-term customer, not only focus on promoting the campaign activity mainly. For the Holika Holika, it should create the customer engagement more than just posting the general updates information.
